Located in Montreal, Canada, the International Centre for the Prevention of Crime (ICPC) is the most important international crime prevention organization. Founded in 1994, ICPC’s mission is to promote the adoption of international standards regarding crime prevention and criminal justice in order to enhance community safety and improve the quality of life for all. ICPC works with member States, international and regional organizations and authorities at all levels of government, and maintains an active presence in the Americas, Europe, Africa and Oceania.

ICPC offers a wide range of knowledge - technical and conceptual - on the theme of crime prevention, as well as policies, practices and related tools to reduce risk factors associated with crime, violence and insecurity.
Message from ICPC Director General, Daniel Cauchy

ICPC’s office work has continued to expand as we look at the number of recent achievements and activities still ongoing. We closed 2015 a little out of breath but still very pleased with our results. Once again, our financial situation greatly improved this year enabling the Centre to move away from daily budget planning and focus more on the future with further developments in staff and projects for 2016.

In 2015, ICPC’s main objectives were to renew and boost relationships with our members, encourage new collaborations and add new partners to our network. You will be able to see in the report how we made considerable progress on the matter.

Through our Mini-Conferences and participation in international events, we were able this year to fulfill our mandate in knowledge sharing so dear to our members. Montreal, Ottawa, Quebec City, Paris, Brussels, Stockholm, Lund, Mexico, Bogotá, Panama, Nairobi and Doha have received ICPC’s members for several events where knowledge sharing was fruitful on both sides.

Let’s not forget to mention two major scheduled events of this year. First of all, the 13th United Nations Congress on Crime Prevention in Doha where Margaret Shaw represented ICPC and made a presentation in the framework of a workshop, and our 5th International Conference on Crime Observation and Criminal Analysis in Mexico. This event was organized thanks to the contribution of various partners and was an opportunity to bring together several members, old and new.

Finally, this year was marked by the official retirement of our Programme Director, Serges Bruneau. M. Bruneau has played a major role in ICPC over the past ten years, so important that we agreed to keep him on hand as a mentor and representative of ICPC, just as we did with Ms. Margaret Shaw. This brings stability and continuity in the expertise while allowing our young and dynamic team to have solid foundation and carry with the amazing work they have been able to produce this year. It is thanks to our staff, interns and volunteers that we can be proud of our achievements.

I hope you will enjoy reading this report and that it makes you as enthusiastic as I am about ICPC’s future. To know more about it, follow us on Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn, our website and subscribe to our newsletter.

ICPC has developed publications on Safety in public institutions, Safety in ground public transport, the prevention of drug-related crime and an international comparative study on the prevention of radicalization.

Safety in public institutions such as schools, hospitals and the Municipal Offices has become a source of concern in the international arena and a central issue with regard to the safety of citizens. It is in this context that ICPC, with the financial support and contribution to the content from the Quebec Ministry of Public Safety, conducted a study on safety in public institutions.

Safety in ground public transport is an important issue in a world where this type of transport is gaining in popularity and consequently is seeing its traffic growing steadily. Indeed, recourse to this mode of transport may be hampered both by rampant instances of crime and the sense of insecurity felt by users and by staff. In 2013 ICPC, in cooperation with partners such as Transdev Canada Inc, the Agence métropolitaine de transport (Metropolitan Transportation Agency - Montreal), the Observatoire national de la délinquance dans les transports (National Delinquency in Transports Observatory - France) began a study on the issue of Safety in ground public transport. The preliminary results of the study were presented at the 11th International Colloquium of ICPC in Palermo, Italy, and a detailed report was released in 2015 and was presented at the 5th International Conference on Crime Observation and Criminal Analysis in Mexico. The report presents how to conduct a diagnosis on safety in ground public transport, the observation of this crime and finally the effective and innovative prevention measures that are implemented worldwide.

Report on the prevention of drug-related crime

Over the course of 2015, ICPC wrote a report for the Government of Canada on the prevention of drug-related crime. More precisely, the study focuses on the legislative frameworks and programmes to prevent violent behavior associated with the acquisition and use of drugs. A comparative analysis was performed between seven national drug strategies: Canada, Australia, the United States, the Netherlands, Portugal, the United Kingdom and Switzerland, the objective was to identify measures that reduce drug-related crime and that can be potentially adaptable in Canada.

International comparative study on prevention of radicalization

This international study aims to gather information regarding both conceptualization and trends, and tools of prevention (legislative and practical), especially those linked to the social prevention of this issue.
In order to accomplish this goal, the study will be conducted in two phases.

1) Phase one was funded by France: a systematic review of specialized literature. From it, good practices were identified and described, as well as institutions and actors that can contribute to the prevention of radicalization. This phase will be published in January 2016.

2) Phase two was funded by Canada: interviews with key actors in various countries will be carried out throughout 2016.
In 2015, ICPC organized its 5th International Conference on Crime Observation and Criminal Analysis.

The Centre was also asked to intervene as an expert in prevention by international, national and local organizations.

This year several Mini-Conferences were organized by the ICPC.

In attendance were representatives from member government Canada and Board members Paul Girard (Treasurer), who ran the meeting, Vincenzo Castelli (Administrator), Anie Samson (Administrator) and Kalpana Viswanath (Administrator).

The following general member organizations were also represented either in person or via proxy:

- Cámara de Comercio de Bogotá, Colombia

- Observatoire national de la délinquance dans les transports – ONDT, France
- Onlus Nova Consorzio per l’innovazione sociale, Italy
- Small Arms Survey. Switzerland
ICPC staff members were also in attendance and acted as interpreters during the meeting.

The three main objectives for the AGM were the following:
- Discussion on the accountability for the past year;
- Direction for the year to come;
- Election of new Board members.

Activities throughout 2015 were presented, as was the Treasurer’s report, which outlined the about-turn of the finances of the Centre and how this was achieved, leading to a much more positive outcome than in the recent years. A renewed effort on behalf of ICPC staff to contact all ICPC members individually during the year was also highlighted, with the intention of strengthening the network that is the backbone of the Centre.

The date and location of the next AGM is to be determined.

In addition to the AGM, six conference calls of the Board were held over the year, ensuring that the Board was kept informed of challenges encountered, activities undertaken and issues resolved. The APC President was also in attendance at several of these meetings.

During 2015 members of the Board and the Director General also worked on the Strategic Plan for the ICPC for 2016-2020, which was adopted in December. The Strategic Plan will be made available on the ICPC Website.

Read the biographies.

New members of the Board of Directors

ICPC is delighted to welcome two new members of the Board of Directors, Mr. Peter Sloly, and Mr. Claude A. Sarrazin. The mandate for the Board of Director is two years.

Management - 2015

The Sûreté du Québec renewed the mandate of Daniel Cauchy as Director General for a third year in February 2015, continuing the stability that the Centre has been enjoying in terms of management, and allowing him to continue his work on strengthening ICPC finances and key relationships with partners after several challenging years.

Past ICPC Directors, Serge Bruneau (Programs) and Margaret Shaw (Analysis and Exchange), both retired from full-time employment with ICPC, but have continued to collaborate with ICPC as consultants, providing guidance, coaching and mentoring to staff on a variety of projects in 2015, including the initial phase of the 5th International Report and the 5th International Conference on Crime Observation and Criminal Analysis in Mexico City.
Finance

Funding for 2015 activities came as always from diverse sources: contributions from member governments and cities, membership fees, and project funding. The Centre continued to encounter challenges regarding cash flow during the year, however the impact on the daily running of the organisation was felt much less in 2015 than in previous years. The issues were caused by the late arrival in the contributions coming from countries that have traditionally funded the core activities of the ICPC, and changes to ongoing projects on the part of funders. Two major funders of general ICPC activities, the governments of Chile and South Africa, both decided not to renew their commitment in 2015, the former due to a change in government and the latter for financial reasons. Chile then reconfirmed its commitment for two more years, starting in 2016.

Evolution of the General Budget

Major funding commitments were renewed in 2015 by the governments of Canada, Quebec and Norway, and the government of France continued its annual contribution. The City of Montreal also provided both general and specific project funding. General funding accounted for 26% of total revenues in 2015, a decrease of 11% from 2014, and project funding increased by 11% from the previous year to 74%.

Despite the challenges encountered, ICPC closed the financial year once again with a surplus of revenues over expenses, mainly due to the continued support of key funding partnerships and careful management of expenditures. The end of 2015 finds the Centre staffed with a core team of three analysts, with several analysts joining the team on a short-term contractual basis for specific projects over the year. A constant rigorous approach to costing proposals and new projects, and improvements in project management have meant that ICPC is becoming a financially efficient organization in terms of delivering projects on budget and on time.

The audited Financial Statements will be available from March 2016.
